

1 year faculty position in ecology/botany
Creighton University

Creighton University invites applications for a one-year faculty position in the Biology Department. Teaching responsibilities include courses in terrestrial ecology, botany and an additional course in the applicant's specialty area. The successful applicant would also work with undergraduate researchers. We envision the position to be a "teaching post-doc" and an ideal opportunity for a junior person to get teaching experience as well as engage undergraduates in research. Our facilities have just undergone renovation and include new teaching and research labs, office space and a large greenhouse area. For more information about the Biology Department, see the web site: <http://biology.creighton.edu/>

Applications will be accepted until a suitable candidate is found, but to be assured of full consideration, please send a 1) a letter detailing your interest and qualifications, 2) a CV and 3) the names and contact information for three references to the following address by February 24:

Ecology Search Committee Chair
Department of Biology
Creighton University
2500 California Plaza
Omaha, NE 68178

Creighton is a Jesuit, Catholic institution that seeks qualified applicants from all backgrounds who believe they can contribute to the university's outstanding educational traditions. We encourage applications from women and minorities. [EOE/AA]

=====
Mary Ann Vinton, Ph.D.
Associate Professor
Department of Biology
Creighton University
Omaha, NE 68178
vinton@creighton.edu
=====